EYE BANKS SET UP CLEARING HOUSE

RICHMOND – The International Eye Foundation offices in Washington, D.C. will act as a clearing house for human eye tissue needed for sight-restoring corneal - transplant operations in the southeastern region of the United States, it was announced today by L. Paul Byrne, Chairman of the Board of Old Dominion Eye Bank of Richmond.

Agreement to set up such a clearing house was made at the recent regional meeting of the Eye Bank Association of America, at Winston-Salem, N.C.

Under the new system, each of the seventeen eye banks in the region will report by phone to the clearing house either the availability of fresh eye tissue, suitable for transplant purposes, or its emergency need for such tissue. This will eliminate costly and time - consuming calls to individual eye banks and will supplement the nationwide services of the eye bank network, a large group of dedicated amateur radio operators who broadcast emergency calls for eye tissue twice daily.

The time factor in making use of human eye tissue is critical, said Byrne. To be used successfully in sight - restoring corneal transplants, eye tissue must be removed from the deceased donor within 48 hours, he said.

Award Goes To Wooldridges

Dr. Edward Wooldridge, of Governor's Island, N. Y. and his father, Edward D. Wooldridge, Hurtsville, are the latest recipients of the Tree Farm award presented to them Saturday by county forester, Warren Taylor. They are now members of the American Tree Farm System because of their interest in forestry and the variety of forestry work done over the past thirteen years. This year their loblolly pines will be thinned out for pulpwood as the beginning of financial return on their investment. They have planted 100 acres of open land, 50 acres of cutover woodland – have thinned shortleaf pine, reforested low grade hardwood and planted abandoned fields. The thinning operation this year under the supervision of forester Warren Taylor and chief forest warden David Smith should produce about two cords per acre.

Missionary To Speak Sunday To Methodists

A Methodist Missionary, supported by the Memorial United Methodist Church, who has been an agricultural worker and a photographer in the Republic of the Congo and in Rhodesia for fourteen years, will be a guest speaker at Memorial United Methodist Church on Sunday, Oct. 18 at 11 a.m.

Mr. Donald E. Collinson of Moline, Ill., who went to the Central Congo in 1956 as an agricultural missionary, has returned to the United States for a year's furlough. During his first 4-year tour, he served at Wembo Nyama, a large central mission and the birthplace of Methodism in the Congo. In 1961, after a regular furlough, Mr. Collinson returned to Africa for a second term at Kapanga in the Southern Congo, where he was in charge of a nursery for tropical fruit trees, hatchery and poultry farm.

In 1964 his appointment was changed; the conference requested he do promotional work. Using Salisbury as a base of operations, Mr. and Mrs. Collinson did publicity and promotional work for three Africa Conferences.

After their second furlough, Mr. Collinson returned in 1966 to Sandoa, Congo, as director of the Agriculture School. In 1968 he resumed his work for the Africa Central Conf. of the United Methodist Church. He was based in Salisbury, Rhodesia, but his work involved assignments in Europe, North Africa, West Africa, as well as Congo, Botswana, Zambia, Mozambique, and Rhodesia, for five different mission boards.

Mrs. Collinson has spent most of her time in Africa as teacher, and in 1967 received her MA in the area of Christian Life and Thought.

Raiders' Men Of The Week

Steve Almond and Plicky are players of the week for their performances Friday night against Rustburg. For both – dinner at Maude's, compliments of the management, Steve Almond (left) a junior at ACHS and second year man on the Varsity played a good defensive game, says Coach Jerry Robinson. Steve threw the quarter-back for four losses – 10 yards or better at crucial times in the game. "He kept pressure on the passers all night," says Robinson. "They just don't run around his end." Back of the week is Plicky Williams, for "leadership and clutch plays during Friday's game." He came up with a pass interception on the 5-yard line in a 4th quarter game-saving play, says Coach Robinson. Final score: ACHS Raiders 21 – Rustburg 14. Friday night the Raiders meet Staunton River here.
